NEARLY 4 INCHES RAIN IN FEW DAYS

Nearly two inches more rain has fallen to date this year than was recorded at the same date in 1927, according to figures given out by the Southern Pacific today. Niles and vicinity had its first hard rain of the season this week, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday noting almost a continuous downpour, 3.82 inches being recorded.

There was no wind of noticeable velocity, however, and no damage has been reported further than that a number of chickens in the vicinity were "all wet", before the storm was over. Knee-deep wading for small boys in new rubber boots was noticed in various low sections of Niles, but for the most part the water disappeared as fast as it fell, and by Thursday, Washington Township had resumed all the pleasant features which make it the best place in the world to call home. Figures given out by Harvey Braun, of the Southern Pacific, were:

Rain to date, this season...4.32 in.
Rain to date, last season...2.36 in.
Rain during last storm...3.82 in.

$391.50 PLEDGED TO MAINTAIN WELFARE HOME

Small Sum Still Needed To Complete Budget For 1928

Eight and a half dollars remains to be pledged before the goal of $400, placed for maintenance fund of the Children's Home at Niles for September, October, November and December is reached, according to a report given by Mrs. Walter Flierle, chairman of the ways and means committee of the Children's Department, at their last meeting held at the Niles library, a total of $391.50 having been pledged already.

One hundred dollars a month had been decided upon as the budget of expense for the first four months, it being felt that by that time a definite idea of just what the up-keep of the place would be could be obtained. This sum is to pay for the rent, heat, lights, telephone and incidental expenses. Many incidental expenses, of course, are to be expected during the first year of the establishment of such an institution.

For the benefit of the public, it is stated that Mrs. King, housemother, receives no salary but is given $20 per month per child for food, laundry, etc., of the children under her care. As stated before, when there are five or six children in the home this is sufficient but in case of a period when there are only two or three, the sum will hardly suffice.

Last week two extra children in addition to the four that have been there for several weeks were kept for a few days until they could be placed with relatives in Los Angeles.

It is to be borne in mind that the home is only a temporary shelter and the children are placed in foster homes as fast as they can be found.

One of the boys now a resident there has gained seven pounds in the month he has been under Mrs. King's care.

Following is a list of pledges made for the last four months of 1928, as announced by Mrs. Flierle:

Niles Chamber of Commerce	$15.00
P. E. O., Livermore	4.00
P. T. A., Tennyson	3.00
Country Club, Washington
Township	40.00

Men Freed From Charge Of Game Law Violation

Tom Cunha of Irvington, Charles Priester and Peter J. Finnoch of San Francisco were acquitted upon disagreement of the jury after their case was heard before Judge Allen G. Norris of Centerville Tuesday. They had been charged with having more than the lawful number of ducks.

GOOD SAMARITAN APPEARS IN FORD

THE GOOD SAMARITAN ambles along in ye old battered Ford in these days instead of riding the well-known donkey, as shown by an incident occurring near Livermore Sunday after Carl Reutz of Oakland, brother of the superintendent of the Arroyo Sanitarium was seriously cut and bruised following a collision with a car driven by Johnny Marino of Newman.

Reutz was thrown through the windshield and he was bleeding so profusely that passing motorists hesitated to place him in their beautifully-upholstered cars. It remained for a flivver, loaded to capacity with family and luggage to come at the psychological time, take in the situation and apply figuratively the oil and wine. The tourist who did not give his name, unloaded his family, entrusted the injured man to the tender mercies of Lizzie and ambled on to Livermore, arriving at the Judson hospital just in time to save the man's life.

P. T. A. Vote to Patronize Local Business Men---Newspaper Included

Use home products! Patronize local business men! Those are two of the slogans of the Niles Parent-Teacher Association which are accounting for the success of this organization, whose fame is being spread throughout the sixteenth district, according to Mrs. R. B. Bulger, president of the East Alameda County Council, who was present at the regular meeting of the local association Tuesday afternoon.

"Your home merchants will aid you when you need them. It is only fair that you patronize them and contribute to their business," said Mrs. Bulger.

And so the P. T. A. voted to order their stationery from The Township Register instead of going about the country trying to save a few cents, this action being taken out of appreciation of the publicity given the projects of the organization by the local paper.

Some time ago discussion arose as to the management of the cafeteria, buying of food used there, etc. Some suggested that sales put on by chain stores should be taken advantage of but the membership voted that since the local merchants extended credit when it was needed and co-operated in many other ways it was only fair and just to give them the benefit of the association's patronage.

More power to the P. T. A.'s. And may there be many of their kind. The Township Register is willing, nay anxious to boost every good thing for the community and to make its donations when called upon. But business is business. White space is for sale. Do not expect the newspaper to give away its products when you know you'll have to pay for bread from the baker's and meat from the butcher's.

A newspaper cannot succeed unless it succeeds financially and it cannot succeed financially if it gives away all that it has to sell.

Any project that is for the purpose of making money for any cause, whether for an individual, an organization charitable or religious, should expect to pay for a part of the publicity that is necessary to make this project a success. And if the paper is generous enough to donate columns of its white space to boosting this project, remember that its job office is waiting for your order for tickets, window cards, booklets, stationery, etc.

Long live the P. T. A.'s and may many follow their worthy example!

Publicity Given Niles Through Story of New Richmond Bridge

Niles and the Richmond Bridge are receiving advertising throughout the whole state due to a front-page display story in the Development Section of Sunday's Tribune, showing a two column picture of a portion of the new structure and an article describing some of the details of its building, as follows:

The new bridge located in Niles Canyon, taking the place of an existing structure formerly known as the Stone Bridge, is described as a remarkable piece of engineering. Plans and specifications for the new bridge were drawn by George A. Posey, county engineer. A description reads:

"The overall length of the structure is 230 feet and the roadway width is 24 feet.

"The general contract for construction of the bridge was let to C. A. Bruce and Sons, contractors, of Pleasanton, Calif., in the latter part of July, 1928, for a contract price of $76,000.

"Excellent progress is being made by the contractors. All excavations for foundations were made and all concrete piers were in place up to around surface by the middle of September, the contractor being spurred on in his work by the danger of floods, the arrival of which might undo a good part of the work not yet completed and would also make carrying on the work below ground very much more difficult.

"All excavations were carried down through about ten feet of gravel and boulders to bedrock and then into bedrock distances of from five to ten feet, depending on the nature of the rock, to secure firm anchorage.

"At the present writing, all piers have been concreted up to the elevation of the deck and girders, and three of the four concrete girder spans are in place.

"The total amount of concrete involved amounts to about 1400 cubic yards or about 2800 tons, all concrete being heavily reinforced.

"All reinforcing steel is being furnished and placed by the Pacific Coast Steel company of San Francisco. About 100 tons of reinforcing steel are required for the finished structure.

"All structural steel is being furnished and fabricated by the Herrick Iron Works of Oakland. The total amount of structural steel required for the two 83 foot plate girder spans is 154 tons. Each span consists of two 25 ton steel girders, seven feet deep, together with the necessary floor beams stringers and cross bracing. Each of the 25 ton girders is being fabricated into a single piece at the Oakland plant and will be so shipped. The first span to be completed was set up completely in the shop in order that the fitting and matching of all parts would be assured, as shown in the accompanying illustration. It was found upon assembly that no corrections were necessary, all of the component parts fitting perfectly. The 36 inch beams used as ties in this bridge are the largest beams ever shipped to this coast."

Mr. Owen Swainson and Miss Margaret Kling of Niles were both visiting in San Francisco over Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Earnest Martin will spend the week-end in San Francisco, while Mr. Martin makes a business trip to Healdsburg.

KAGLE TO HAVE A PRELIMINARY HEARING NOV. 20

Star In Shooting Affair Is Charged With Assault With Deadly Weapon

Otto Kagle, charged with assault with deadly weapon, appeared before Judge J. A. Silva Tuesday for arraignment. He is represented by Attorney T. L. Christensen, of Oakland, and will have his preliminary hearing before Judge Silva next Tuesday.

Kagle is alleged to have shot George Richards through the wrist during a shooting fray which put Niles into turmoil Sunday morning a week ago. The trouble started at a party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Albers on First street when it is reported Kagle made insulting remarks to some of the women present.

Leaving the party, it is said that he returned to his home on the rear of the Albers lot and secured a gun with which he proceeded to start one of the merriest little gun battles Niles has witnessed in a long time. Richard's wrist and the plate glass window in the post office were the only casualties, a good portion of the citizens of down-town Niles, however, having been frightened to an extreme degree by the general shower of bullets.

It is probable that Kagle will plead self-defense.

COMMERCE CHAMBER AT BENEFIT LUNCH

Fifty-five Attend Luncheon Given at Mrs. Habenicht's For P. T. A.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. E. Habenicht the Niles Chamber of Commerce enjoyed the benefit lunch served by the women of the Niles Parent-Teachers' Association. Mrs. Harvey Braun, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association, spoke to the men urging them to join their association as "Dads." Then Mrs. E. Plumb told of the drive for new members and the prizes that they wanted to win. The county Parent-Teachers' Association is offering a $5 prize for the organization that gains the most new members, another prize of the same amount for the most new "dads" and also a $2.50 prize for the most unique way of getting new members.

Nineteen were present and enjoyed the opportunity of eating a wonderful home-cooked meal, expressing thanks to the Parent-Teachers' Association who made the lunch possible and to Mrs. Habenicht for her kind hospitality. At one o'clock the women were served by Mrs. Habenicht, including members of the Parent-Teachers' Association, friends and visitors from out of town. About 55 in all were served.

Search is being made in Washington Township for the friends of Joko Givovich, a Serbian about 37 years old, who fell from a stage in the Del Valle shaft of the Hetch-Hetchy tunnel last week, 175 feet to the bottom of the shaft, breaking every bone in his body and meeting instantaneous death.

Givovich has been working for the Hetch-Hetchy about six months and it is not thought that he has any relatives in this country but it is known that on his days off he visited somewhere in Washington Township. LAWRENCE BUNTING ESCAPES INJURIES

Car Crashes Into Pole To Avoid Collision With Berkeley Machine

The Bunting car was almost a complete wreck but neither Mr. Bunting nor his son were injured.

The Berkeley car backed out of a driveway very suddenly without warning in front of the Niles machine. To avoid hitting them broadside, Mr. Bunting had to swerve his car to one side and it crashed into a pole. The Berkeley people admitted their carelessness and will attend to necessary repairs.

To the first half-million new Ford owners

TO THE half-million men and women who have received new Fords in the last eleven months, there is no need to dwell on the performance of the car.

You have tested its speed on the open road. In traffic you have noted its quick acceleration and the safety of its brakes. You know how it climbs the hills. On long trips and over rough stretches you have come to appreciate its easy-riding comfort. Continuous driving has proved its economy of operation and low cost of up-keep.

This is an invitation to you to take full advantage of the service facilities of the Ford dealer organization so that you may continue to enjoy many thousands of miles of carefree, economical motoring.

The point is this. You have a great car in the new Ford. It is simple in design, constructed of the best materials and machined with unusual accuracy. It is so well-made, in fact, that it requires surprisingly little attention. Yet that doesn't mean it should be neglected. Like every other fine piece of machinery, it will serve you better and longer if given proper care.

One of the best ways to do this is to take your car to the Ford dealer every 500 miles for oiling and greasing and a checking-up of the little things that have such a great bearing on long life and continuously good performance.

Such an inspection may mean a great deal to your car. To you it means thousands upon thousands of miles of motoring without a care—without ever lifting the hood.

Ford dealers everywhere have been specially trained and equipped to service the new Ford. You will find them prompt and reliable in their work, fair in their charges, and sincerely eager to help you get the greatest possible use from your car for the longest period at a minimum of trouble and expense. That is the true meaning of Ford Service.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

by EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT the building of a city should be handled as carefully as any big business proposition and in a common-sense way.

THAT a city must have a healthy growth, for in this turmoil of modern business and development a city must stand up under stress and disappointment and always go forward slowly and surely.

THAT co-operation on the part of all must be had. THAT those who enter into the fight for a bigger, busier city will discover that never before have they had presented to them a proposition of equal magnitude and attractiveness.

THAT all can materially benefit the home city if they begin right now to make the coming months ones of production and prosperity.

THAT it would be difficult to find one citizen who cannot in some manner help to increase the prosperity of all.

EVERYONE can, without detriment, inconvenience or expense, at least remember that the home city is their city and act accordingly to the end that harmony and prosperity may come.

First Anniversary Of Mothers' Club Nov. 17

On November 17, 1927, the Mothers' Club organized in Decoto. The officers were: President, Mrs. A. A. Amaral; vice-president, Mrs. C. O. Blose; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. P. L. Coupland. An election of new officers will be held at the next meeting.

During the past year the club gave a community supper to representative citizens of the town. "The problem of the Decoto youth" was discussed with A. N. Benson as the principal speaker. In February, a farewell party and supper was given to Mrs. Mary Mills. Several rumage sales were held, and clothes and shoes were given to the needy. In April they gave a surprise birthday party to Mrs. Swanson. They also assist the grammar school teachers in making costumes for the pupils.

Charter members of this society are: Mesdames Charles Blose, P. L. Coupland, A. A. Amaral, Jack Luna, Elsie Luna, Joe Andrade, Joe Nevis, Charles Walker, Mary Pimentel, P. A. Swanson, Clarence Silva and Miss Breiner. A recent member is Mrs. Geo. Bowers. Meetings are held weekly and bi-monthly.

A mammoth anniversary cake will be auctioned off at the community carnival to be held November 17. An attractive display of aprons will be for sale in the Mothers' Club booth.

Mrs. Bowers will tell fortunes from the dregs of your coffee cup. Hans Swanson, assisted by Leroy Cloveane, will give the patrons 10 cents' worth of thrills in their Mystery House; and lastly, the most valuable booth, conducted by Mrs. Amaral, will contain the aprons that the Mothers' Club has been working on for the last six months.

At 8 o'clock "The Courtship of Miles Standish" — a Thanksgiving Shadow Picture, is to be presented. The Pilgrim friends to be played by the Friendly Indians. Then, the big pageant, "Our Community Festival," is to be presented by the young people, and groups representing home, commerce, science, industry, farming and organizations.

Those taking part are: Uncle Sam, Safe, Sane, Safety First, Law, Order, Flapper, Flipper, Censor, Science, Religion, Education, Art, Children, Library, Chamber of Commerce, Fire Department, Mothers' Club, School Faculty, Boy Scouts, and the Merchants. A pictured wheel of the community will be featured. An orchestra directed by John Kimber will furnish the music.

Last Thursday the members of the Mothers' Club met at the home of Mrs. P. A. Swanson. Dinner was served at 5 o'clock.

The Friendly Indians enjoyed a morning of games at the Niles church Monday as they could not hike to Mission Peak because of the rain. A hot lunch was served to the hungry boys. Mr. Peter Decoto took the members in his car.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c to day at Walton's Pharmacy.

Alameda County Woman Suggested As Vice-President of Federation

A forecast in the election of officers which will be the piece de resistance of the convention menu when the California Federation of Women's Clubs assembles next May in Santa Cruz was sounded at the session of the State Executive Board held at the Hotel Senator in Sacramento recently. This was the reading of endorsement of Mrs. William Waller Slayden of Los Angeles for president. Mrs. Slayden is president of the Los Angeles district and she was endorsed for the office of state president at a council of the Los Angeles district presidents held just a few days ago at San Gabriel and attended by 480 women.

Other endorsements were: Mrs. Annie Little Barry for vice-president-at-large coming from the Alameda district and Mrs. W. S. Cairns for auditor from the San Joaquin Valley district. Great activity is indicated in federation extension, seven new clubs being accepted at the meeting today. These were the California History and Landmark Study Club of Santa Monica; the Wide Awake Club of Davidson City; the Hostess Presidents' Club of Los Angeles; and the Women's Club of Montebello Park of Los Angeles; all of the Los Angeles district; the G. W. Grannis Club of Chico and the Woman's Civic Improvement Club of Nevada City, both from the Northern district; and the Carmel Woman's Club of Carmel, in the San Francisco district.

A comprehensive exhibit of the various achievements of the federation will be on display at the next State Fair in compliance with the decision made at the board which also empowered the State President, Mrs. W. W. Green, to determine the character of the exhibit and the persons to look after it.

Mrs. Clara Bryant Heywood of Pasadena was appointed by Mrs. Green as State Chairman of International Relations. Mrs. Heywood takes the place of Mrs. L. F. McClelland whose recent death created a vacancy in the office. The meeting of the state board today adjourned in memory of Mrs. McClelland.

Mrs. Robert Masters of San Diego was appointed chairman of the Crafts and Industries Division which was added to the Department of American Home by vote today.

The board voted to endorse the plan to preserve the home and writings of Luther Burbank. This plan was presented by Dave Matthews, secretary of the Luther Burbank Foundation, Inc.

The six district presidents, Mrs. W. W. Slayden of Los Angeles, Mrs. Wm. Lauchland of Alameda district, Mrs. Hamilton Riggins of San Francisco district, Mrs. J. V. Leithold of Northern district, Mrs. W. W. Goodrich of San Joaquin Valley district, and Mrs. H. E. DeNyse of Southern district together with several chairmen of Departments and Divisions attended the meeting. Mrs. W. W. Green, state

BRILLIANT BALL BRINGS LEGION MORE THAN $200

Garden of Allah Crowded To Capacity at Armistice Celebration

One of the most successful dances ever staged in this part of the country took place at the Garden of Allah last Saturday evening, the Washington Post of the American Legion under whose auspices it was given, clearing a little more than $200 on the tickets and the booth concessions.

The hall was jammed to capacity, almost as many having come to sit or stand on the side-lines and watch the fun as to enjoy the excellent floor and the unexcelled music of the seven-piece orchestra which played till two o'clock. Confetti, serpentine and gay paper caps added to the general festivity and the cries of the "barkers" at the booths to the general excitement.

One of the marked features of the affair was the extreme orderliness of the crowd which packed the place on this festive occasion, this being expected, of course, since the celebration was in the charge of the Legion, the men who fought for peace and expect to have peace at any price. Everybody and everybody's grandmother was there, only a few of the familiar faces seeming to be missing. A generous sprinkling of high school youngsters was noticed in the throng. Legion men may be assured that the success of this affair will bode well for any future event they may advertise.

Parents Urged to Co-operate With Welfare Center and County Nurse

Statistics mean little to many people but the fact that Miss Lena Schinnick, public health nurse for Washington Township, has visited 123 homes, weighed and measured 1,842 persons and sent out notices to 500 parents whose children have been examined and found defective in some respects, is an indication that the crusade for health in this district is an active one.

In the report given below, probably the most important is, "home notices for follow up, 500." This means that out of the 1,112 class room inspections, the 730 physical inspections and the 368 special inspections made during the month of October, five hundred of these persons have been found defective in some way and that specific treatment is needed.

"Unless we have the co-operation of the homes in following up our work, our effectiveness is greatly lessened," stated Miss Schinnick. "When we examine the children, write notices to their parents pointing out certain defects, parents should be certain to follow out the suggestions made for treatment."

It is stated that generally speaking, this co-operation is forth-coming, but in some cases, parents have not yet realized that for the sake of the child these defects should be corrected immediately.

Twelve schools are included in the jurisdiction of the township health nurse—the Washington Union high school, the grammar schools of Niles, Centerville, Decoto, Irvington, Alvarado, Mission San Jose, Warm Springs, Mowry's Landing, Alviso, Lincoln.

Following is the report for the month of October for the Washington Township Health Center at Centerville, as given out by Miss Schinnick:

Visits to home, 123.
Visits to county hospitals, 1.
Meetings attended, 3.
Office interviews, 41.
Health talks to children, 32.
Patients referred to Associated Charities, 1.
Patients referred to school dentist, 6.
Patients referred to county hospital, 7.
Patients taken to hospital, 1.
Letters written, 62.
Persons using health center, 41.
Schools visited, 12.
Visits to schools, 34.
Home notices for follow-up, 500.
Classroom inspections, 1,112.
Physical inspections, 730.
Special inspections, 368.
Exclusions recommended, 8.
Weighed and measured, 1,842.

IMPORTANT MEETING FOR YOUNG MOTHERS

Mothers are fast waking up to the idea that one of the fundamental factors in the successful rearing of children is health. Morals and mentality are often the direct results of physical conditions.

And the old-time theory of "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is the latest slogan in health work. Working upon this principle, Miss Lena Schinnick, health nurse, is urging all mothers and grandmothers, cousins and aunts, any persons who have the care of little children, to attend the meeting which is to be held in Hayward at the high school, Thursday afternoon, Nov. 22, at 2:30 o'clock, at which time Dr. Suzanne Parsons, physician of world renown in prenatal care and obstetrics, and in child care, will conduct a conference.

The following letter has been sent out by the Washington Township Health Center:

To the Mothers in Southern Alameda County:

This is an invitation to each of you to be present at a very important and valuable "conference-for-mothers" to be held in the Auditorium at the Hayward Union high school on Thursday afternoon, November 22nd, the 4th Thursday in November, at 2:30 o'clock.

It is of exceptional importance in that the California State Bureau of Child Welfare has been fortunate in securing Dr. Suzanne Parsons, a physician of world renown in prenatal care and obstetrics, to conduct the conference. This will be the one and only occasion that Dr. Parsons will be available in Southern Alameda county.

The doctor will be here for your personal benefit and especially for the younger mothers.

Do not miss this conference. Keep this letter for reference. Note the date—November 22. Bring another young mother with you.

Cordially yours,

Parent-Teachers Association of Alameda County, Alameda County Public Health Center, Hayward Department of Health.

Children's Home Gets Thanksgiving Hens

Two fine fat chickens will grace the Thanksgiving board at the Children's Home due to the thoughtfulness of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Fingado, owners of one of Niles' biggest and most successful poultry ranches. A note for Mrs. King, housemother at the Home arrived one day last week asking her to save a place in her plans for this part of the menu.

Medical Talks To Be Given on Radio

In co-operation with the San Francisco County Medical Association, the University of California Medical school staff is now carrying on a weekly radio talk over KFRC, be-

Stanford medical schools. Medical facts will be presented and each day a separate subject discussed. Following the regular talk, Dr. Behneman will answer questions on general medicine.

Dr. H. M. F. Behneman, who is arranging the programs, is going to present a series of talks on general medical subjects. Some of the speakers will be from the staffs of the San Francisco County Medical Society, also from the California and

The Irvington Community church will hold a special Thanksgiving service on Thanksgiving Day at 9:30 a. m. This has been the Irvington custom for a number of years.

ENTHUSIASM IS DEMONSTRATED AT P. T. A. MEETING

Many Items of Interest Are Discussed; Next Date of Meeting, Dec. 11

More than twenty attended the enthusiastic meeting of the Niles Parent-Teachers' Association Tuesday afternoon, several items of interest being announced at that time.

Mrs. E. Plumb, chairman of the membership committee, reported four new "dad" members and three other new members during the month. A special effort is being made to enlist the fathers in the membership of the association. The local group is working for the membership prizes; $5 being offered by the district council for the most new members; $5 for the most father members and $2.50 for the most unique idea of enlisting new members. These figures are based proportionately upon the enrollment of the school.

Mrs. R. K. Wilson, chairman of the candy committee, announced $12 profits for the past month in the sale of candy.

The publicity chairman, Mrs. J. M. Williamson, reported a total of 160 inches of publicity during the month, or about one page and three columns. One dollar was spent for one advertisement. It was pointed out that out of the 160 inches, at least half of it was news and the other half propaganda which the four papers carrying the publicity had donated, or about $20 worth of advertising which had been given to P. T. A. projects.

Mrs. Alves reported for the recent card party. More than $70 was cleared. Miss Bunker's room sold 88 tickets.

Mrs. E. A. Ellsworth, cafeteria chairman, reported cafeteria receipts and disbursements.

It was voted to send $4 to the Children's Department for the Welfare Board as requested to by the ways and means committee of that organization.

Mrs. George Rose was announced to be the chairman of magazines and emblems.

Mrs. Habenicht reported on the recent reciprocity luncheon at the Woman's City Club in Oakland.

Mrs. E. Plumb reported upon the last district meeting held at the Centerville school, remarking upon the wonderful reception given by the hostess council.

Brief talks were made by Mrs. R. B. Bulger, president of the East Alameda County council; and Mrs. Maude Patterson, chairman of the Child Hygiene department of the 16th district.

Mrs. Roland Bendel, chairman of Better Reading for the district, made a brief report on Book Week, stressing the importance of having children acquire the habit of reading.

Mrs. J. C. Shinn suggested that a number of the pamphlets recommended by the National Educational Committee of the American Association of University Women be purchased for the use of the P. T. A. It was voted that a committee be appointed to look into this matter.

The next meeting was announced for Dec. 11.

Sam Metzger, world war aviation veteran and prominent aviator of California, spoke to the student body at the high school recently.

A WEEKLY CHAT WITH LOVERS OF BOOKS

A few months ago this column contained comments on the Mexican immigration question and a list of books regarding a discussion of this subject. Recently the following letter from the Immigration Study Commission at Sacramento was sent to us:

"Dear Sirs: We are grateful to you for having published the story on the immigration question in a recent issue of your paper, headed 'A weekly chat with Lovers of Books.'

"All such efforts are tremendously worth while in awakening American public opinion.

Sincerely, C. W. Goethe,
President, Immigration Study Commission."

100 Worthwhile Books.

There are many who would read who know not what to read, and many who would supplement their school education with good reading. With this in view, at the request of the Board of Trustees of the Niles Library, Miss Mary Barmby, county librarian, has sent the following list of 100 worth-while books that every American, between the ages of 20 and 45, ought to read. They were selected by a committee of 96 educated men and women, all of whose names are found in "Who's Who in America" and arranged in order of their popularity with the committee.

IRVINGTON

The young people of the Irvington Community church made $35 last Saturday from the proceeds of the food sale. Everything was sold out from soup to salads and from doughnuts to door knobs.

Mr. Henry F. Weston and Rev. J. R. Stevenson, were commissioners at the meeting of Presbytery in San Francisco Tuesday. The meeting took place in the Russian Community Building on Potrero Hill, which was until recently a Communist and Bolshevik headquarters. An elegant five-course dinner was enjoyed by the commissioners and the meeting was filled with interesting things.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Raymond, of the Irvington Hotel, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bettencourt, of Centerville, visited Monterey recently.

John J. Perry, of Irvington, purchased a new standard six "400" from Centerville Nash Company on November 6.

A new ornamental sign is being prepared for the Irvington Community church. An iron ornamental bracket has been donated by Bert Melvor of Mission San Jose and Henry F. Weston has prepared a neat gilded sign board. The sign will be placed on one of the ornamental trees fronting the highway.

ENDURING AS MOUNT BAKER

Put new CYCOL on trial in your motor; prove its "endurance beyond belief"

Stability The new Cylcol will stand the hardest kind of usage. It is refined to meet the severer conditions of heat and pressure developed by the modern high compression engines, assuring you an unbroken oil film where heat, pressure and friction are greatest.

No Acids The new Cylcol refining process eliminates the use of acids, though most refiners use them. While acids clear the "crude oil" they chemically change its structure and composition, thus seriously cutting its lubricating value.

Such oils break down under engine temperatures. They distill off and escape as vapor through the breather-exhaust.

The new refining process of Cylcol selects from the "crude" those elements of greatest lubricating value and stability in performance, rejecting those elements which readily break down under engine heat and cause excessive carbon deposits.

So Cylcol gives a protective oil film on cylinder walls and moving parts, not vapor at the breather pipe.

Less Carbon As to carbon, Cylcol like all oils deposits some carbon. But it deposits less carbon than any other oil. The most exhaustive tests have proven that statement.

Even more important, the carbon that is deposited by Cylcol is soft and easily removable. It is not hard or sticky and cannot scratch a cylinder.

Prove it yourself Cylcol gives you the finest results you have ever known—more perfect lubrication, "endurance beyond belief" and the elimination of carbon troubles.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

DAN CUPID IN DOUBT

THE secret sorrow of a thousand modern homes is that the Elaine of the tower does not prove to be capable of protecting the battlement. And this falling, you will find, if you look into the matter without prejudice, is the root of a growing evil which is spreading its branches like a noxious tree in every part of the world.

As the boughs cast their shadows where the sun ought to shine, there comes the alarming conviction that home life is losing its old-time charm; that the newly married are turning to boarding houses and hotels, afraid to accept such responsibilities as their fathers and mothers assumed with every evidence of gladness.

This trend of the new generation is the meaning of the hue and cry against landlords, extravagant rents, pressure of hard times, discontent and the ceaseless grinding of the mills in the divorce courts.

Dan Cupid, with his quiver of arrows, standing at the crossroads, hiding in gardens of roses, or waiting at splashing fountains where moonbeams silver the waters, is not the merry, saucy and confident little imp that he was a generation ago.

His lips have lost their smiling curl and his chubby hands are a bit unsteady as he bends his bow and lets fly an arrow.

And oftener than not, unless his arrow be tipped with gold and studded with gems, he misses his mark.

In the olden days, the love that soared and sang at the twang of the bow, also busied itself in building a nest of its own, and the beautiful lady of the tower could make the alriest bread and broil a steak to a turn, proud of her accomplishments.

But those were the delectable days of the Darbys and the Joans, when the lady stood unafraid on the battlement and helped her lord to win the fray.

Love then was real and it lasted from the springtime of orange blossoms to the sere and yellow leaves of autumn, down to the snows and the last sigh of winter.

And all through their lives, in the glorious years and in the somber, the married pairs held their troth and sang from the joy in their hearts:

Hand in hand when our life was May,
Hand in hand when our hair is gray.

And here is the sentiment that keeps love delicate, sweet and beautiful through the eternal ages!

A LITTLE SONG

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I HAVE a little song I sing.
It hasn't words or anything,
I never I de,
It into rime,
I never played
It any time
On any sort of instrument,
I couldn't tell you how it went.

But I can tell you how it came:
You called me by a dearer name,
And in my heart
A little tune
That seemed a part
Of skies and June
Began to sing like whippoor-wills
At sunset hours from wooded hills

And I have never quite forgot
That song, although I know it not.
You never near
Our cottage door
But that I hear
That song once more.
When sunset hours your footsteps bring

I have a little song I sing.

Uncommon Sense

GETTING AN EDUCATION

YOU do not have to go to college to get an education. Some of the best informed and educated men I know never got past grammar school. But if you really desire an education you can usually manage to get one—or part of one. For there is no such thing as a completely educated person.

No person can cram into one head knowledge of all the literatures, all the sciences and all the philosophies, or into one body skill in all physical labors, sports and exercises.

But the person who is anxious to acquire culture can generally succeed in acquiring it.

The first thing to do is to observe what goes on about you. Knowledge is not confined to books and never has been. You can pick up a great deal of it in everyday life.

Especially if you are on the look-out for it.

Observe people and see how they act in different situations and under different conditions. Then think about what you have seen.

Then read. And remember that all books are not alike.

Some books teach us something. Others are just about valueless for anything except killing time.

If you are interested in the former try to select books that will be useful to you as well as interesting. Your librarian will probably be glad to help you select the books you want.

Don't be afraid to indulge your own inclinations. If your trend is toward science you will probably want to specialize in scientific works. If you dislike sciences there is certainly no very strong reason for forcing yourself to study them.

You might as well read about the subjects in which you are interested. Because if you attempt to force your education it will probably not progress very far.

Some people can always find time for a little reading no matter how busy they are. You do not have to take a day off to read seriously. Make your spare time pay you a few dividends in culture.

Remember that because a book is a classic it is not necessarily dull and unreadable. It must have something to recommend it. A bad man may acquire lasting fame but not a bad book.

Select the books that will teach you something if you are interested in learning.

But however much you read, remember that all knowledge does not lie in books. A great scholar may be densely ignorant of how to care for his body.

Books reflect the lives of others. And they are not infallible.

They will help to educate you but don't depend on them alone. Let your own life educate you, too.

WHEN MILLIE MUTINIED

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

"YOU can just stay here then!" With this declaration Millicent Ware flounced into the bedroom of the farm cottage and pulled from the closet a small traveling-case.

"But, Millie," came Andrew Ware's patient voice from the doorway, "there's more in life than just pleasure."

"Pleasure!" turning on him, "what pleasure have I on this place—it's just work all the time."

"But it is ours," Andrew reminded her. "and clear of all debt; when the harvest is over—"

"Yes, and you can just get some one to help with the harvest, too; if I can find work in the city I'll stay there," she ended defiantly, instantly regretting her hastiness, for she had not meant to go so far. And all because Andrew would not consent to using some of their savings of $200 for a trip to the city!

True, her married years had not been easy, but they had both kept well and had prospered; it was just that Andrew did not understand her need of change.

"But, Millie," she heard him say in a shocked tone, "surely you would not desert your home!" A stubborn silence was her answer and presently she heard him go out the kitchen door.

"I can't help it," she said to herself resolutely, her eyes filling; $100 of the money is mine and I may as well make the break now. It's too bad he didn't marry Letty Weston, who is such a perfect housekeeper; if Andrew were brave enough to ask her father for the money he owes us, we wouldn't be riding around in a broken-down second-hand car, either." With determination she began packing.

Unable to change her, Andrew saw her off on the city train and drove back dejectedly to the empty house. With changed eyes he looked at the little dwelling, seeing many improvements that could make it more habitable, but he had wanted to pay for the place and build the barns so the house had waited. "Even so," he thought, "Millie could have done much to it had she been a mind to."

Letty had the knack of cookery and curtains that Millie lacked; he wondered why she had married him—a plain farmer—when her ambition had been to "be a lady and live in town."

But he knew why he had married Millie—sweet, pretty little bunch of rebellion that she was—and a mist over his eyes shut out the disordered house.

Unhappy, and frightened by the crowds and the confusion of the great city, Millie made her way to the modest hotel a kindly station officer had suggested, there to lie awake through the long night, oppressed by the heat of the little room and the unaccustomed noise of street traffic below. But with dawn came courage and the decision to find something to do.

A weary day's search proved conclusively that only trained workers were wanted, and Millie returned to the little hotel at nightfall in a very different and humble state of mind. She had learned much, though, during the day. One thing was that she did not even resemble in appearance the "ladies" she saw; her girlish clothes being wholly unlike their quiet attire.

"I can learn," she determined, "and while I'm here I'll just learn everything I can." She sent a card to Andrew, giving her address, and set out next morning on her quest for knowledge, her first act being to make a change in her apparel, a kindly saleswoman assisting her to replace the gaudy tomato-colored coat and green plumed hat with an outfit of becoming tan.

The morning classes in one of the great department stores fascinated her and she began by giving an hour to one in home decoration, another hour to a cooking class where "ladies" in expensive fur coats listened closely to the demonstrator. Millie received a new viewpoint of the once despised cooking, the whole bringing an interest in her home she had never had.

In the afternoon she went sight-seeing; one rainy afternoon she climbed to a top gallery to hear a great symphony orchestra. But it was in the art gallery she first became aware of the great beauties of the landscape she could see from her cottage window. "And I have them without gold!" she mused, suddenly realizing that she was homesick. When no word came from Andrew by the end of the week Millie grew too anxious to link of anything but home. "Suppose he was sick!" "Suppose he no longer cared for her because she came away!" And last came the tormenting thought that it might be he had turned back to Letty—"Letty who never could take care of him as she, nor love him half as much!"

Within an hour after making her decision she was on the train speeding back home, surrounded by bundles of things she had bought—curtain material, a cook book dress patterns, a bowl of soft-baked pottery for flowers, all of which she carried on the mile and a half walk from town, a sob of relief escaping her when she saw a light in the window. Reaching the gate she ran up the path and flung open the door.

Andrew, at work laying pretty blue and white linoleum on the kitchen floor, turned in surprise. The next moment he had her in his arms. "I was—afraid you—were sick—when you didn't—write," she wept, her weariness forgotten in her joy to be home and in his arms again.

"I didn't think you'd feel that way, honey," tightening his arms around her. "I was waiting to get everything done—to surprise you—then I was going to drive up and bring you home. You see," he went on, "I stirred old Weston up about that money and he's going to pay it back—"

"You mean—you went over and asked him?" Millie gasped in astonishment.

"I certainly did, and what's more, I bought Jed Smith's second-hand coupe, a radio and some furnishings," indicating the new linoleum.

"Oh, Andrew, I'm—I'm so proud of you."

"Well, I decided I'd been a selfish coward about long enough."

With a kiss Millie stopped him. "It is I who have been selfish, Andrew, and cowardly, too—to run away. But oh, Andrew, I've learned so many things I'm glad I went, just wait until you see; but the best of everything I learned is the truth about happiness—that we have what all the gold in the world cannot buy, and that is love, Andrew—just love."

All Feuds Forgotten at the Dining Table

In the ages of chivalry and fighting men, when battle, murder and sudden death were part of the day's routine, the dining table of the baronial hall gradually became the one spot in the domain of the warlike chief to be exempt from deeds of bloodshed and violence.

Tradition has it that this came about in the following way, says American Cookery: The lord of the manor, on the occasion of a great banquet, given in honor of esteemed and distinguished personages, divested himself of his sword before he took his place (above the salt) at the table, and stood in those times the equivalent of an umbrella stand, thus tacitly and by a beau geste assuring his guests that they would not be assaulted and batted while they dined. Whereupon the guests, not to be outdone in generosity, likewise took off their swords and stood them in the umbrella stand before taking their places (above the salt) at the table.

Later, or maybe it was earlier, in the days when the craftsmen of the great trade centers used to assemble to choose an executive, and party enthusiasm would run to the point of chips on the shoulder and wigs on the green, harmony was introduced into the proceedings by having the elections take place at sumptuous feasts where "roast pork, chicken, pigeon, goose, rabbit, cakes and sweet meats" were eaten in jovial fellowship and accord. For healthy, hungry men who enjoy good food together, who express their relish of it to one another and find themselves like-minded as to the excellence of the venison pasty, or the jugged civet, quickly discover that superficial differences are matters of small moment when there is agreement in fundamentals.

"Codfish Aristocrats"

"We should regard it as somewhat strange," declared the member from South Carolina, Mr. Butler, in the United States senate, during a speech delivered July 6, 1850, "if we should require a 'codfish aristocracy' to keep us in order." By this allusion Mr. Butler intended to indicate the somewhat bumptious domination of Massachusetts inhabitants who, recently grown rich on the profits of the Atlantic cod banks, had given themselves airs deemed unbecoming and vulgar. The phrase "codfish aristocracy" is today interchangeable with the gallicized nouveau riche, with an added slur of contempt for the pretensions of the humble-born who come suddenly into money and make immodest display of it.—Mentor Magazine.

Long Swim Saved Life

Francis J. Auth, a twenty-one-year-old athlete of Washington, D. C., made a daring rescue when he and a companion, Miss Leila G. Milstead, eighteen, of the same city were washed out of a motor boat near the middle of Chesapeake bay. Auth assisted the young woman, who had just learned to swim, to reach a bell buoy, a mile and a half away. The young man then started to swim to shore, four miles away, which he reached after several hours, where he told the story of the mishap. The girl was picked up by a coast guard crew.

Ground Game

In English law the term "ground game" applies to hares and rabbits, which are subject to extinction by the occupants of lands to protect their crops from injury and loss. This removes these animals from the protection, which, in the interest of the sporting classes, the English law throws about wild animals which are hunted for sport. Ordinarily, the possession of land confers no right to kill or snare game found thereon, but it is not uncommon in England to provide in a lease for the keeping down of ground game.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A FALL DAY

"We thought we had gone to bed for the winter," several of the garden flowers said, "and that we would not see you, Mr. Sun, until next year."

Mr. Sun blinked and beamed and said:

"It will be warm for a week and I'll see that you have a wonderful week of sunshine."

The flowers smiled and waved in the soft breeze.

"We love it these days," they said. "They always come as such a surprise."

"Somehow we can't imagine that warm days will come after Jack Frost gets at us."

"He freezes us and makes us feel like shrinking up into absolutely nothing at all."

"It's a shame, too, the way we obey him."

"Never mind," said Mr. Sun, "you have a lot of fun, so you mustn't

To Be Captured in a Net.

really mind if Jack Frost comes along in the autumn for his fun too."

"That's so, we mustn't be greedy," the flowers said.

Along came the butterflies and they sipped of the honey from the flowers.

"Hello, blossoms," said the butterflies.

"Hello, lovely butterflies," the flowers said, as they raised their heads which meant an invitation to the butterflies to take all the honey they could.

Now a little boy named Geoffrey came out of his house. He walked from the porch down into the garden.

"What a fine day it is," he said to himself, "I must do something."

Now the flowers and the birds and the butterflies did not like Geoffrey.

And when flowers and birds and butterflies did not like people it is a very bad sign.

He always walked through the garden pulling at the flowers and dropping them as he pulled them off.

He never picked them as if he thought they were beautiful, and they loved to be picked nicely.

They know that they give so much pleasure that way, and flowers love to make people happy.

The birds were always afraid that Geoffrey would find their nests.

He had been known to steal eggs.

And the butterflies knew that he owned a horrid net that he tried to catch them in.

Luckily they had not been caught but they always were miserable when they saw him.

"I shall certainly have a butterfly today," he said. "I thought they had gone for the year, but here they are around again."

"Yes, I must start a collection. There's a beauty," he said as he saw a gorgeous yellow one flying over some flowers.

"Mr. Sun, Mr. Sun," whispered the butterflies, "is there anything you can do to help?"

"Ah yes," said Mr. Sun. "I know what I'll do, and I'll do this very morning."

"It will be a great joy to do what I have in mind, but of course I must speak to the Dream King."

The butterflies did not know about the Dream King, but Mr. Sun was certainly a comfort.

He called the Dream King and said: "Give this boy the right kind of a dream. He wants to catch butterflies—and you know the rest."

Mr. Sun began to shine so hard that it made Geoffrey feel sleepy.

"I guess I'll take a nap in the sunshine before I start in catching butterflies," he said.

That was just what they wanted, and the Dream King sent him a dream of what it felt like to be captured in a net—and when he woke up he knew how the butterflies would feel and he knew that a collection of this kind would be mean and unfair.

The Crow and the Oak

On an old, old oak croaked a crow with a croak—

"Croak, croak, croak," croaked he. "If you croak for a joke," quoth the old oak

"What a funny joke it must be." Then the old oak thought the joke he would poke.

At the crow as he croaked on the tree, "Croak," went the oak—a branch of it broke—

And down with a croak came he.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work as a rider. Williamette Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie," is the owner of the ranch. The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one. The newcomer is put to work. Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious. Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "bad man," visits Billie. He has long wanted to marry her, but she dislikes and fears him. Slade, endeavoring to embrace Billie is interrupted by Harris. Harris half jestingly, proposes that the girl marry him and so settle the matter of the ranch ownership.

"I reckon that'll be Blue?" Harris asked of Evans and the lanky one nodded. The men scattered round the corral and each watched his chance to put his rope on some chosen horse. The roan kept others always between himself and any man with a rope but at last he passed Harris with but one horse between. Harris flipped his noose across the back of the intervening horse and over the blue roan's head.

"You've been busted and rope-burnt a time or two," Harris remarked, and he led the horse out to saddle him. The big blue leaned back, crouching on his haunches as the man put on the hackamore. His eyes rolled wickedly as Harris smoothed the saddle blanket and he flinched away with a whistling snort of fear, his nostrils flaring, as the heavy saddle was thrown on his back.

Harris tightened the front cinch and the blue horse braced himself and drew in a long, deep breath.

"That's right, Blue, you swell up and inflate yourself," Harris said. "I'll have to squeeze it out of you." He fastened the hind cinch loosely, then returned to the front and hauled on the latigo until the pressure forced the horse to release the indrawn breath and it leaked out of him with a groaning sigh.

"I wonder now why Morrow is whetting his tommyhawk for me," Harris remarked as he inspected the big roan. "You're a hard one, Blue. I'll let that saddle warm up on you before I top you off."

"Well, step up on him and let's be going," Morrow ordered surlily.

Harris took a short hold on the rope reins of the hackamore with his left hand, cramped the horse's head toward him and gripped the mane, his right hand on the horn, and swung gently to the saddle, easing into it without a jar.

"Easy Blue!" he said, holding up the big roan's head. "Don't you hang your head with me." He eased the horse to a jerky start and they were off for Brill's at a shuffling trot. Three times in the first mile Blue bunched himself nervously and made a few stiff jumps but each time Harris held him steady.

"You'd have made one good little horse, Blue," he said. "If some sport hadn't spoiled you on the start."

They left the horses drooping at the several litch rails before the post and crowded in.

Some detached themselves from the group and occupied themselves with writing. Several started a game of stud poker at one of the many tables. Harris wrote a few letters before joining in the play, and as he looked up from time to time he caught many curious glances leveled upon him. Morrow had been busily spreading the tidings that a would-be squatter was among them and they were curious to see the man who had deliberately defied the unwritten law of the Cold-river range.

Waddles had instructed Evans to start the men back before the spree had progressed to a point where they would refuse to leave Brill's and so leave the Three Bar short-handed. At the end of two hours he looked at his watch and snapped it shut.

"Turn out!" he shouted. "On your horses!"

CHAPTER IV

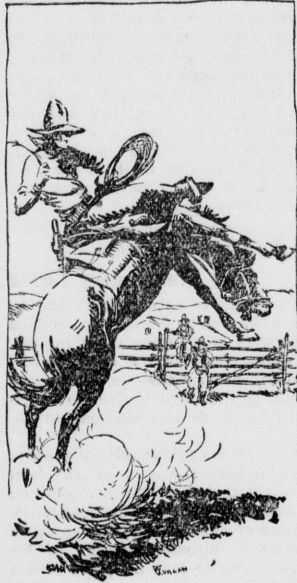

It is said that there comes a day in the life of every handier of bad horses when he will mount one and ride him out, master him and dismount—and forever after decide to ride another. Riley Foster was evidence of this. For three years Riley and Bangs had been inseparable, riding together on every job, and the shaggy youth topped off the animals in Foster's string before the older man would mount them. As Bangs went about his work his faded blue eyes were ever turned toward the Three Bar boss who stood in the door of the blacksmith shop.

The girl was vaguely troubled as she noted this. Bangs and Foster had returned for their second season at the Three Bar. All through the previous summer the boy had evidenced his silent adoration, his eyes following her every move.

The scene round Billie was one of strenuous activity, every effort bent toward whipping the remuda into shape for the calf round-up in the least possible space of time.

Green horses were led out, one after another, to be saddled for the first time, and those previously broken required a few workouts to knock the wire edge off their unwillingness to carry a rider after a winter of freedom on the range.

Three men were shoeing horses tied to snubbing posts at ten-yard intervals before the shop. One animal that had fought viciously against this treatment had been thrown and stretched, his four feet roped to convenient posts, and while he struggled and heaved on the ground Riley Foster calmly fitted and nailed the shoes on him. Cal Harris finished shoeing the colt he was working.

"That's the last touch," he said. "My string is all set to go."

"You have five colts gentled for your circle bunch," she said. "But you didn't pick a single cow horse. The boys have sorted out the best ones and the few that are left won't answer for a man that insists on a gentled string."

"Creamer and Calico will do for me," he said. "I broke them myself and maybe I can worry along."

"Did you break them like that?" she asked. Bangs was topping a horse that strenuously refused to be conquered and as they looked on the animal threw himself.

"Like that? Well, no—not precisely," Harris said. "They're not breaking horses. They're proving that they're brone-peelers that can ride 'em before they're broke. A horse started out that way will be a brone till the day he dies."

Three men were lashing their bed rolls and war bags on three pack horses and when this task was completed they rode down the lane, each one leading his pack animal. Harris knew this as evidence that they would start after the calves on the following day. The custom was to exchange representatives to ride with each wagon within a reasonable distance, the reps to look after the interest of the brand for which they rode.

"How many reps do you trade?" he asked.

"Three," she said. "Halfmoon D. V L and with Slade."

The Halfmoon D lay some fifteen miles eastward along the foot of the hills; the V L the same distance to the west, but cued away in a pocket that led well back into the base of the range, a comparatively small outfit owned by the Brandons, father and four sons, who made every effort to keep the bulk of their cows ranging in their own home basin and exchanged reps only with the Three Bar.

Slade's home place lay forty miles south and a little west and his cows grazed for over a hundred miles, requiring three wagons to cover his range.

During the afternoon the three reps

Universal Belief in Horseshoe as "Lucky"

Almost everyone at some time has found a horseshoe. And almost everyone who found one has either proudly hung it up or tucked it away for safe keeping.

What then could be more appropriate than to use the horseshoe as a beautiful door knocker to adorn the entrance of your home? Or to use it as a door stop, or book ends, or as an ash tray for your living room?

The horseshoe has been accepted and recognized as a symbol of good luck almost universally for many centuries.

Ancient mythology credited the horseshoe with threefold powers of good fortune. The shape suggested came in to replace the men who had left. The surplus horses had been cut out and thrown back on the range, only those required for the remuda remaining in the pasture lot. The chuck wagon was wheeled before the cookhouse door and packed for an early start. Before the first streaks of dawn the men had saddled and breakfasted. It was turning gray in the east when four horses, necessitating the attentions of four men, were hooked to the wagon. A man hung on the bit of each wheel horse while another grasped the bits of the lead team as Waddles made on last hasty trip inside.

"This will be a rocky ride for a mile or two," he prophesied, as he mounted the seat and braced himself. "These willow-tails haven't had on a strap of harness for many a month. All set. Turn loose!"

The men stepped back and the four horses hit the collars raggedly. One wheel horse reared and jumped for ward. The off leader dropped his head and pitched, shaking himself as if struggling to unseat a rider, then the four settled into a jerky run and the heavy wagon clattered and lurched down the lane.

The wrangler, whose duty it was to tend the horse herd by day, and the night hawk who would guard it at night sat on their horses at the far end of the corral and urged the herd out as the gates swung back. The remuda streamed down the valley, the two first riders swinging wide to either flank while the night hawk and wrangler brought up the rear.

Shortly before noon the wagon was halted in a broad bottom threaded by a tiny spring-fed stream. The teams were unhitched; mounts were unsaddled and thrown into the horse herd, which was then headed into the mouth of a branching draw and allowed to graze. Waddles dumped off the bed rolls that were piled from the broad lowered tail-gate to the wagon top and each man sorted out his own and spread it upon some spot which struck him as a likely bed ground.

It was not long before Waddles was dispensing nourishment from the lowered tail-gate, ladling food and hot coffee into the plates and cups which the men held out to him. They drew away and sat cross-legged on the ground. The meal was almost finished when six horsemen rode down the valley and pulled up before the wagon.

"What's the chance for scraps?" the leader asked.

"Step down," Waddles invited. "And throw a feed in you. She's still a-steaming."

Four of the men differed in no material way from the Three Bar men in appearance. The fifth was a rufian with little forehead, a face of gorilla cast, stamped with brute ferocity and small intelligence. The last of the six was a striking figure, a big man with pure white hair and brows, his pale eyes peering from a red face.

"The roostered albino is Harper, our leading bad man in these parts," Evans remarked to Harris. "And the human ape is Lang; Fisher, Coleman, Barton and Cunfield are the rest. Nice layout of murderers and such."

Harper's men ate unconcernedly, conscious that they were marked as men who had violated every law on the calendar, but knowing also that no man would take exceptions to their presence on that general ground alone, and as they had neared the wagon each man had scanned the faces of the round-up crew to make certain that there were none among them who might bear some more specific and personal dislike.

The Three Bar men chatted and fraternized with them as they would have done with the riders of any legitimate outfit. Harper praised the food that Waddles tendered them.

Billie Warren forced a smile as she nodded to them, then moved off and sat upon a rock some fifty yards from the wagon, despising the six men who ate her fare and inwardly raging at the conditions which forced her to extend the hospitality of the Three Bar to men of their breed whenever they chanced by.

Harris strolled over and down facing her, sifting into a brown paper and deftly lighting his smoke.

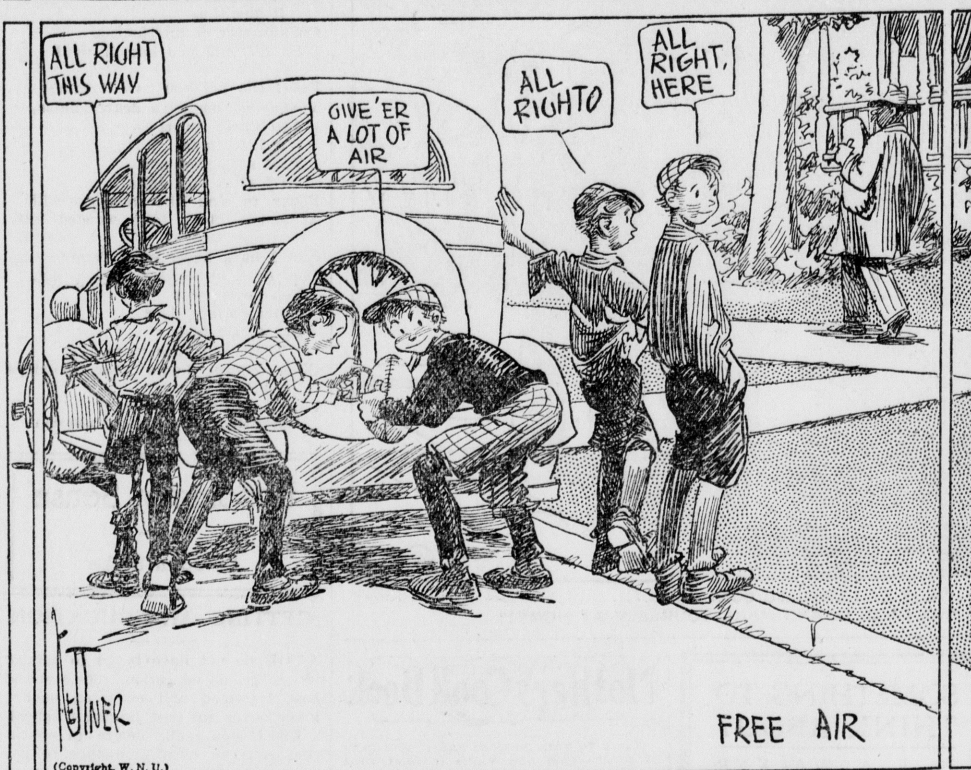

"Has it been on your mind—what I was telling you a few nights back, about how much I was loving you?" he asked.

"You had your chance to prove it by going away," she said, "and refused; so why bring it up again? The next two years will be hard enough without my having to listen to that."

Annual Red Cross Roll Call Started; Community Chairmen Selected

Tuesday witnessed the opening of the annual Red Cross roll call in Washington Township and communities are now at work throughout the various communities enlisting the support of all citizens for this organization which has been described by Herbert Hoover, president-elect at "the one guarantee to the American people that in calamity, loss of life shall be prevented, suffering mitigated, to the utmost degree."

Due to the many disasters whose results the Red Cross has been called upon to remedy during the past year, a larger fund than usual is being sought in the present roll call. The Mississippi flood and the Florida hurricane were among two of the outstanding tragedies of the year.

Assistance in these sections and in other parts of the country have greatly depleted the treasury. Last year a little over $400 was raised, this year at least $7000 is desired. Every citizen is urged to at least do the minimum and that is to take a dollar membership in the Washington Township Chapter of the American Red Cross, this being a branch of the Oakland Chapter. In many cases, individuals and business organizations will take a $25 or greater membership.

For the first time this year the Campfire Girls organization in Niles has been asked to take charge of the campaign under the direction of the Niles Campfire Guardian, Mrs. J. E. Townsend. In Newark, the Campfire Girls will also have charge of that campaign, under the direction of Miss Margaret Laudenschlager, guardian. This group handled the work successfully last year.

The object of the American Red Cross is familiar to all. In its congressional charter, its obligation has been stated as follows:

"To continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and to apply the same in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods and other great national calamities, and to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same."

In fulfillment of this obligation, the Red Cross has, since 1881, dealt with approximately 1119 disasters at home and abroad and has expended more than $75,000,000 more than $1,500,000 annually, entrusted to it for relief. In the past three years alone it has served as the agency of relief in 310 disasters, administering nearly $30,500,000 of relief funds, an average of over 100 disasters annually, eight each month.

Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state, feels that the Red Cross is a factor in international good will. "It is an invaluable factor in strengthening friendly relations between our people and the peoples of other nations," he has said.

Below is given a list of the names of the chairmen of the various towns in the township who will conduct the 1928 Red Cross roll call. When these workers come to you, they do not come to beg money but to give you the privilege of taking part in the support of a practical humanitarian service organization.

Remember that the Red Cross button on your coat or the service flag in your window is an indication that you are willing to do your bit toward this national crusade to lessen suffering and hardship. Nobody knows at what day or hour calamity will strike and the very person asked to aid in this work will himself become an object of its aid.

No section of the country has any guarantee against the onslaught of the elements, or disaster of a hundred and one descriptions. Money secured through the Red Cross roll call is a fund laid up against that day when even you and I may need it.

The following organization has charge of the roll call:

Township chairman, Mrs. Carrie Emerson.

Township secretary, Mrs. F. V. Jones.

Mrs. A. A. Amaral, Decoto.

Mrs. R. L. Pond, Irvington.

Mrs. Carrie Emerson, Centerville.

Campfire Girls and Miss Margaret Laudenschlager, Newark.

Campfire Girls and Mrs. J. E. Townsend, Niles.

Mrs. Walter Robie and Mrs. August May, Alvarado.

Postmaster Rogers, Mission San Jose.

The local chapter has just forwarded a check for $25 toward the Christmas fund for the boys in the Veterans' Hospital at Livermore, according to Mrs. Jones, secretary.
